SILVER REUNION OF THE MANCHESTER ELLIOTT GRAYS YESTERDAY.

This Famous Company's Twenty-fifth Anniversary Gloriously Celebrated on Sharp's Island-Speeches, &c.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the organization of the Manchester Elliott Grays was celebrated on Sharp's island yesterday. By invitation, the Man-chester Artillery took part in the celebration. There were some fifty men present, the Elliott Grays embracing about two thirds of the number. Among the welcome guests were Captain John S. Whitworth, now of Nor-folk, the gallant commander of the Elliott Grays. The day was spent in the usual enjoyments peculiar to old-sol-dier reunions. Lunch was spread from 11 to 1 o'clock and dinner at 24 P. M. The dinner was voted " A No. 1 " and the stew and barbecue among the best ever gotten up, even on Sharp's island, so famous for these delicacies.

James A. Gentry, president of the Association, was at the head of the table, flanked by Captain Whitworth, of the Elliott Grays, and Captain Emmet Weisiger, of the Artillery.

Captain Henry Fitzgerald and Lieutenant James D. Craig, of the Grays, and Lieutenants Perry and Abbott, of Lieutenant Craig, James A. Gentry,

Mr. Gentry read some of his war rected for the occasion.
Sergeant George C. Anderson gave out a toast, and John Smith furnished vocal and instrumental music. Much regret was expressed at the absence of Snead, and other comrades. Taken as a whole the reunion was one of the most pleasant and successful which has taken place. Its success and pleasure is due to Mosses. James W. Craig, George W. Tolby, and A. A. Waugh, aided by Messrs. George Sharp, Charles F. Fischer, Alfred Simmone, Thomas N. Fisher, and others. A vote of thanks was tendered the committee and Mr. H. A. Catlin for an elegant floral tribute, with " Elliott Grays, 1861-'86," inscribed thereon. The health of absent comrades was drunk, and the dead in war and peace

Rev. William P. Wright, of Laurel-Street Methodist Episcopal church, preached at the Soldiers' Bome Sunday afternoon. He preached from I. Timothy vi., 12, and his sermon was one of the best ever preached at the Home. The reverend gentleman was a member of Company F. Twenty-eighth Virginia infantry, of Pickett's division, and was wounded three times during the war. Little Mamie Trahern, although quite indisposed, sang with her usual sweetness and spirit.
There is no dimination in the at-MOTT'S ADDRESS. the Republican State Executive Committee reached here to-day. It shows temper throughout, and makes the antidress is quite long, and but few extracts are here made. It says the committee decided that it would not call a State Convention this year. Every member of the committee, and all others present at the meeting for consultation. agreed that there should be no nominations, even if a convention should be held. The purpose of Logan Harris and Thomas B. Keogh, who were present and engaged in the discussion, was to have a State Convention to get a new Executive Committee. It was unanimously agreed that it would be unwise to have a political contest in the election for judges for our courts. The candidates for judge could not canvasor otherwise engage in political controversies, and the result of such election would decide no political issue. To hold a State Convention for the purpose only of electing a State Executive Commit tee would entail heavy expense an great inconvenience to our party friends cessity for it. The committee regrets that there is no State political election this year. If there were they would call a convention to put a State ticker in the field and welcome a contest. In deciding not to have a State Convention this committee does not mean to prescribe or indicate any course of policy to be pursued in congressional, jude it says, asking a Republican Senate to confirm his nomination for United States marshal, this committee did not aid him in securing confirmation, and the Republican Senate refused to con-firm. His bitter hostility to certain members of the committee is well known. So he and Harris bolt the organization of the party under the pre-text of desiring nominations to be made for the State judicial ticket. The address then attacks Judge Thomas Settle. It says the Republican party in North Carolina had never been rented until Judge Settle was defeated for Governor. Keegh was chairman of the Executive Committee, manipulated his nomination, managed his canvass, backed up by a Republican Administration at Washington with ample funds from the National Committee. These managers led the party to defeat and disaster. Settle left for Florida, and Keogh got off the committee, not to manage any more. Prisoners grabbed Adair, and, after a desperate struggle, succeeded in overpowering him, and while one held him, John Smith, with a huge bowie, cut Adair's throat from ear to ear. Adair, to protect his throat, threw up one of his hands, receiving a slash across his wrist, almost severing it. The second lunge with the knife struck him about the right shoulder, and extending downward diagonally across his body to the left hip, cutting his body half in two. The fiends ther half in two. The fiends then mounted Adair's horse and made their escape. Adair, by an hercu-lean effort, raised himself from the ground and walked half a mile to a farm-house, where he fell exhausted. and a boy was harriedly despatched to town for surgical aid, but he died before reached him. The old chief uttered a yell and the bucks made a rush for their intended victim, but the courier put spurs to his horse and with a bound cleared the savage circle. The Apaches fired a volley at close range, inflicting a fi-sh wound on the leg of the courer and mortally wounding his horse. The country was favorable for flight, and before another volley could be fired horse and rider were out of range. The Apaches were not mounted. The horse, although fatally shot, ran several miles and then fell dead. The courier went on foot to a ranch. Where he obtained a horse, and went on to Husehucha, bringing his dispatches and man about seventy years of age-who remained at home this morning while A delightful rain is falling, and good the rest of the family went to church. He was roused from a nap by a noise up-stairs, and, running up, found an able-bodied thief ransacking the rooms. The thief at once started to run, and the old man took after him. The thief dropped a pistol, and the old man picked it up and threatened to shoot. The thief drew another pistol and turned to fight, but thought better of it, and as a train was just leaving for Cincinnati he ran to it and climbed on a front car just as it was pulling out. He supposed he had escaped, but the old man caught the last car, pulled himself aboard, and came to the Grand Central station, in this city. Here he jumped off before rived, and work will be begun in the the train stopped, spotted his man, who was amazed to find his Nemesis still pursuing him, and started to run out the back way. Old Mr. Keller kept close to him, however, and the depot policeman joined in the chase. The thirf ran five or six blocks, with the old man still a good second. The policeman's wind began to fail him and he began to shoot. One bullet struck the thief in the back and passed through his body, but he kept running until he fell from loss of blood. Then he was taken to the hospital with a very serious wound. He proved to be a professional crook named John Wilson, well-known to the police. Mr. Keller saw his mad-in good hands and then calmly boarded an sutgoing train and got back before the rest of the family returned from
